About the National Book Council

The National Book Council (NBC) is a public entity that caters for the Maltese book industry, offering several important services for authors, publishers, translators, editors and illustrators whilst striving to encourage reading and promote the book as a medium of communication in all its formats. The NBC represents writers and publishers in public fora and institutions in order to promote the interests of the book industry's stakeholders. It organizes the Malta Book Festival and the National Book Prize, among other national initiatives, as well as events of a smaller scale, including several literary contests. The NBC also administers Public Lending Rights and is the local agent for ISBN and ISMN.

The National Book Council's markedly cultural mindset and multimedia approach enables it to work with different partners to achieve its goals. As an entity, it falls under the remit of the Ministry for Education, Sport, Youth, Research and Innovation, and has always been considered as part and parcel of the public educational infrastructure.

The Chairperson's Message

Two years have swiftly passed since my appointment in September 2021. In this time, we have worked tirelessly on various National Book Council initiatives, navigating challenges and realizing our vision. Our focus on the publishing industry remains unwavering, a crucial element in our country's cultural development.

Building on our work in 2022, the Council continued to assure its relevance in a world whose parameters keep shifting at an exponential speed. Our calendar remains active with monthly initiatives, whether they are funding mechanisms, competitions or other integral parts of our mandate, showcasing our commitment in the various initiatives undertaken by the National Book Council, the efforts invested in our vision for the future, and meeting the many challenges that come our way.

Our increased workload required us to step up our external recruitment drive, resulting in the addition of two new colleagues as of last August. One will fulfil the role of the Council's marketing manager, with the other manager helping to ease the load on our small team. The Council is now working with the highest number of full-time employees it has ever had. With the coming years bringing exciting projects and challenges, this growth process marks an important new beginning, reflecting the extent and ambition of our operation.

The year 2023 proved to be exceptionally demanding for both the NBC and myself as its Executive Chairperson. Our journey commenced with two consultation meetings in January, engaging with our stakeholders. These meetings serve the dual purpose of maintaining a vibrant dialogue and staying abreast of industry needs. The session with the publishers involved discussions on pertinent issues, from the escalating cost of paper to appeals for government assistance. The continuous rise in the final product's cost as a printed book, coupled with a decline in the quantity of printed copies, is posing a threat to the cultural landscape of Malta and Gozo. Thorough discussions about the 2022 Malta Book Festival also led to the rescheduling of the 2023 edition of the Festival to October. The session with authors delved into initiatives impacting them specifically, including the National Book Prize, the Malta Book Fund and the Public Lending Rights scheme.

At the National Book Prize ceremony on 24 November, I emphasized the challenges faced by publishers in recent months and announced that, starting this year, the NBC would not only reward authors and illustrators, but also provide monetary recognition to winning publishing houses with a €1,000 cash prize for each winning book. This award aims to incentivize publishers to continue investing in local talent and enhance the quality of productions, recognizing the publishers' pivotal role in the industry ecosystem.

The Malta Book Festival, held this year from 18 to 22 October, gauged positive feedback. This highlighted the well-organized layout featuring the innovative concept of a central square. The favourable weather throughout the opening days facilitated the attendance of thousands of individuals and hundreds of families. The Festival hosted forty-four exhibitors and welcomed distinguished guests, drawing over six thousand students.

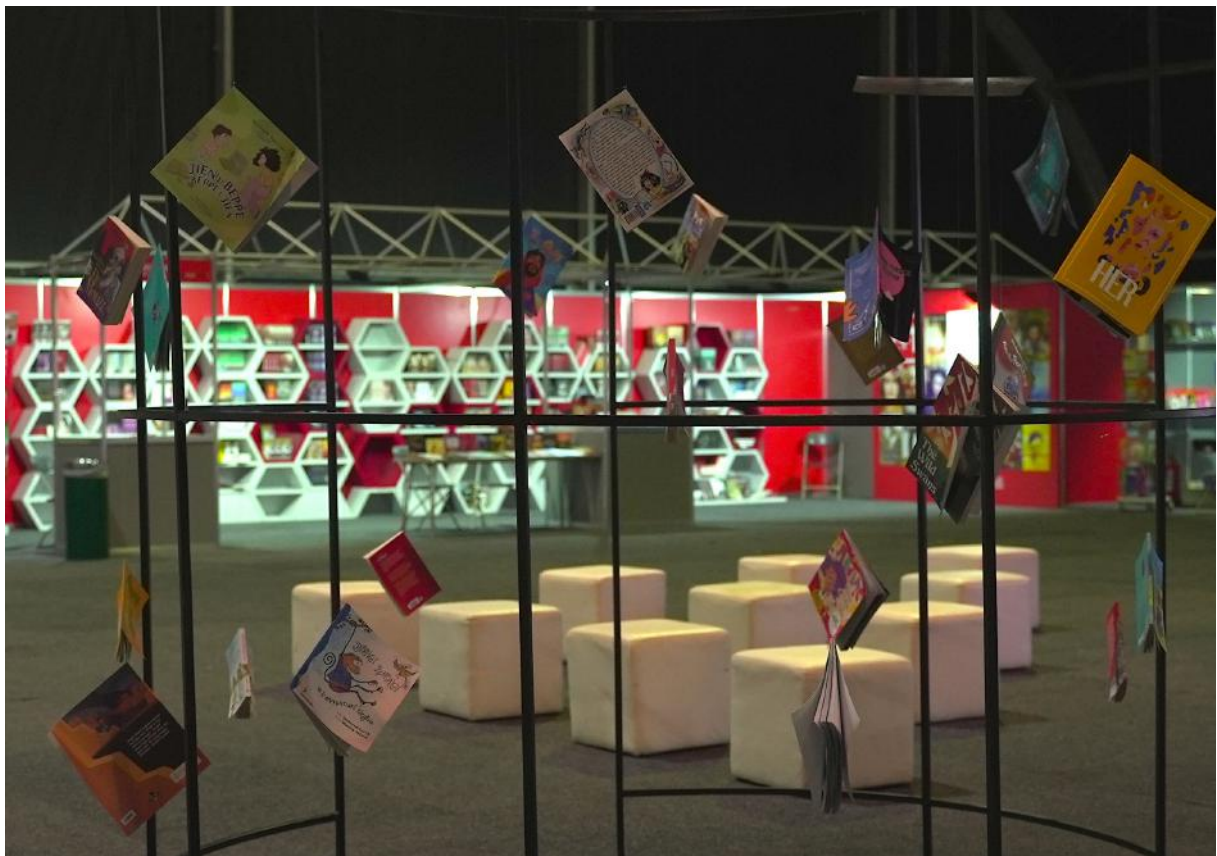

The National Book Council cannot afford to work in isolation. At the Festival, collaboration and synergy with other entities and associations offered numerous benefits. Increased collaborations instil pride and confidence that we are moving in the right direction. Simone Spiteri's DÙ Theatre presented children's shows in Maltese during school visits, inspired by Terramaxka award-winning Maltese books. A courtesy visit from the Gibraltar Book Council opened up new prospects of collaboration. The second edition of the exhibition on book illustration, showcasing both classic and contemporary examples, was organized in collaboration with Arts Council Malta. Thanks to Inspire Foundation and APS Bank, the Festival featured a sensory-friendly room for children on the autism spectrum, enhancing the Festival's inclusiveness and accessibility.

The Public Lending Rights scheme continued to provide a total of €60,000, disbursed quarterly. The Council remains dedicated to donating books to Malta Libraries, ensuring public access to Maltese literature. Authors, editors and illustrators are remunerated for each book loaned from the Public Libraries of Malta and Gozo, as well as the University of Malta Library.

A notable source of pride was the exceptional quality of projects submitted to the Malta Book Fund. With a commitment to consistently support authors, translators and publishers by financing projects and encouraging them not to dismiss endeavours based on a lack of commercial viability, we are also actively promoting the Fund during our international engagements at foreign book fairs. Our primary goal is to enhance the export of our literature to foreign markets. Additionally, by facilitating the translation of foreign books into Maltese, we aim to broaden accessibility for readers to a more extensive selection of literature in the Maltese language.

Authors, illustrators and publishers networking at the 2023 London Book Fair

Some 2023 underline our commitment to a global literary presence. These are facilitating the publication of Modern Poetry in Translation's special edition on Maltese poetry, the collaboration with the Commonwealth Foundation for their Short Story Prize, and the teaming up with the International Human Rights Art Movement (IHRAM) for the release of an anthology in 2024. Our ongoing collaboration with the small and independent UK-based publisher Praspas Press also aimed to disseminate Maltese literature in the English-speaking market. Attendance at the London Book Fair and the ISBN Annual General Meeting in Morocco strengthened our international connections. A select group of publishers, authors and illustrators attended the London Book Fair in April, seizing a crucial opportunity to network and create business opportunities.

Works on the Malta Book Centre on Old Mint Street, Valletta, are ongoing. The past year saw the completion of the restoration of historical wall paintings, now incorporated into the planned cafeteria space. In January, the structural phase of works is scheduled to commence, followed by mechanical works related to lighting and water systems. The Malta Book Centre will serve as a one-stop-shop for the book industry – authors, translators, editors, illustrators, publishers, readers. Strategically located in the heart of the capital city, the Centre will also host a bookshop curated to appeal to the local community but also tourists, visitors and international residents. While providing space for book launches, seminars and related activities, there will also be room for those seeking a quiet reading spot away from busy Valletta streets. The space will house an interactive museum showcasing permanent and temporary exhibitions, casting a spotlight on the rich history of Maltese literature. Consolidating these initiatives under one roof serves as a direct investment in Maltese publishing. The Malta Book Centre concept is driven by the ambition to position it prominently on our country's cultural tourism map. Prospective collaborations with local and international agencies fuel this aspiration. In the latter part of next year, we are set to unveil the strategic vision intricately tied to the Centre, charting the course for the evolution of this significant capital project.

Throughout 2024, the Council will work on developing a comprehensive national strategy for the years 2025-2030 – a meticulous process involving extensive consultations with all industry partners and stakeholders, thorough data gathering and the establishment of specific, achievable goals. This document will provide a clear vision, guiding the future of the National Book Council as well as the Maltese book industry.

As we look to the future, the National Book Council remains dedicated to fostering Maltese literature's growth and global recognition.

The National Book Prize

The National Book Prize is the most prestigious literary prize bestowed by the National Book Council upon authors, publishers and illustrators for books published in Malta during the previous year. In 2023, submissions were open to books in eight competitive categories for the National Book Prize for adults, and six for the Terramaxka Prize for children and adolescents. The shortlisted titles and winning titles in these categories were selected by an independent adjudication board, ensuring the highest degree of transparency and fairness.

The 2023 National Book Prize winners were announced on Friday 24 November during a private ceremony presented by Glen Falzon and held at the Magazzino Hall, Valletta Waterfront. In his opening address, the NBC Executive Chairperson Mark Camilleri hailed the significant legacy of the National Book Prize, now in its 46th edition, and announced that as of this year's edition, all winning publishing houses will receive a €1,000 prize. The decision to introduce this additional monetary recognition stemmed from the need to acknowledge the publisher's significant role in the production of a prize-winning publication, as well as the challenges faced by publishers in recent years, by dint of the economic disruption caused by international upheavals.

The 2023 National Book Prize received a total of 161 eligible submissions constituting the longlist. The winning titles were then selected by an independent evaluation panel from a shortlist of 62 works by thirteen publishers and 54 authors. This was announced on 13 June, when 36 books were shortlisted across the eight National Book Prize categories for adults – Novels in Maltese and English, Short Stories in Maltese and English, Poetry in Maltese and English, Drama in Maltese and English, Translation, Literary Non-Fiction in Maltese and English, General Research, and Biographical and Historiographic Research. 26 other works competed across the six categories of the Terramaxka Prize for books written for children and young adults – Original Works for ages 0–7 and 8–12, Young Adult Literature, Translated Works for ages 0–7 and 8–12, and Translated Young Adult Literature.

Beyond the fourteen competitive categories, the National Book Prize annually awards a number of special prizes. In 2023, the Lifetime Achievement Award was conferred to Prof. Daniel Massa, while Lon Kirkop was recognized as the Best Emergent Author. The National Book Prize also acknowledges publishers' efforts with two awards for Best Book Production, one awarded to a book for adults and another one to a children's book. Recipients of the National Book Prize receive the sum of €4,000, while translators of Terramaxka Prize-winning works receive the sum of €2,000.

The National Book Council would like to thank the members of the adjudication board of the 2023 National Book Prize and Terramaxka Prize: Rachel Baldacchino, Liam Gauci, Joseph M. Brincat, Simon Spiteri, Omar Seguna, Robert Pisani, Charmaine Bonello, Kristy Psaila and Sandra Hili Vassallo. Special thanks go to Margaret Callus from Malta Libraries for the classification of the submitted books in their respective category.

Maria Grech Ganado's first poetry collection as Poet Laureate

On 11 July 2023, Maria Grech Ganado's The Bell (Kotba Calleja, 2023) was launched as her first poetry collection bearing the author's honorary denomination of Malta's Poet Laureate. This publication, which was partially funded by the National Book Council, was celebrated at San Anton Palace under the patronage of the President of Malta, H.E. Dr George Vella.

Grech Ganado was granted the title of Poet Laureate by the NBC in 2019, the same year she won the National Book Prize for Poetry for the fourth time with Framed (Merlin Publishers, 2018). Earlier, in 2015, she was also recognized by the NBC with the prestigious Lifetime Achievement Award for her contribution to literature in both Maltese and English.

The Malta Book Festival

The Malta Book Festival is the largest cultural event dedicated to books and reading in Malta, and its 2023 edition took place between 18 and 22 October at the Malta Fairs and Convention Centre (MFCC), Ta' Qali. Welcoming over 40 exhibitors and boasting a programme of over 100 events, the theme for this latest edition was #beyondbooks, tapping into the multi-faceted potential of the written word.

Once again making full use of the MFCC's generous 8,000 square metres of available floor space, the Festival was divided across several thematic areas, drawing inspiration from the quirky mascots that consolidated the event's marketing. These were: Ray il-Qarrej, an imaginative fisherman whose nose is always stuck in a book (Is-Sala tal-Qarrejja, sponsored by the Energy and Water Agency); the enigmatic writer Filip il-Kittieb, whose passion lies in the performed word (Is-Sala tal-Kittieba); Ċiċi l-Ispettatrici, the curious cat who purrs at the sight of a literary show (Is-Sala fil-Pjazza); and Mia s-Semmiegħa, the music enthusiast who jams to aural stories (It-Teatru).

The festival welcomed thousands of schoolchildren during the weekday mornings of the festival, where they could enjoy the tailor-made theatre show based on award-winning Terramaxka publications, directed by award-winning playwright Simone Spiteri. The NBC presented each registered student with a €5 voucher to be redeemed from participating exhibitors while book browsing at the Festival.

This year, the NBC further refined the layout of the stands and common areas to maximize the communal feeling of the event, which was reflected in both the event areas and a revamped conception of the café space, creating a 'pjazza'-like environment. The collaboration with 'pay-it-forward' café Jacob's Brew also contributed towards creating a welcoming atmosphere, as they served hot drinks from their own truck parked in the Pjazza.

Also helping to create a holistic experience of the written word was the National Book Council's collaboration with Arts Council Malta (ACM), which resulted in the second edition of the From Illustration to Book exhibition curated by Dr Nikki Petroni. Taking visitors through the evolution of contemporary Maltese illustration, this edition also put a spotlight on two notable practitioners in the field: Ġorġ Mallia and Marisa Attard. The exhibition also comprised an installation that celebrated classic and contemporary book characters that left an indelible mark on our literary imagination, as well as a section which displayed a selection of artwork from the Malta Community of Illustrators' (MCOI) Illustration Annual 2023. An added element to the collaboration with ACM this year was an Interactive Mural. The artists chosen by MCOI through an open call engaged in a live painting session led by Matthew Demarco of Bloom Creative/Maltatype and inspired by an overarching theme: the potential for illustration as an agent of social change.

The NBC was also proud to host Il-Malti: Il-Mixja Sal-Għarfien Uffiċjali, organized by Heritage Malta and L-Akkademja tal-Malti. This exhibition illustrated the history of the Maltese language from its Semitic roots up to its current status as an official EU language through informational material accompanied by facsimiles of books and documents.

Welcoming over 40 exhibitors and boasting a programme of over 100 events, the theme for the 2023 Malta Book Festival was #beyondbooks, tapping into the multi-faceted potential of the written word

Still from one of the theatre shows for schoolchildren based on Terramaxka prize-winning books

Accessibility and inclusion remain important to the Malta Book Festival. For the second consecutive year, Il-Kamra Sensorja, managed by Inspire Foundation in collaboration with APS Bank, created an autism-friendly space. Calibrated for low stimulation and coming with some basic sensory items and autism-friendly resources, the room allowed children on the spectrum to have access to storytelling activities in a safe and inclusive environment. The Energy and Water Agency also organized a number of events for young visitors, advocating on important topics such as water conservation and responsible energy consumption.

The 2023 edition of the Malta Book Festival provided visitors with a keen insight into the process of devising, developing, selling and ultimately publishing a book, through a dynamic series of events delivered by both local and international participants. Bestselling Irish crime writer Sam Blake delivered two workshops on the craft – one geared towards post-secondary students and another focused on crafting a bestseller – while literary agent Simon Trewin gave a talk on the realities of the publishing industry, offering an insight into how Maltese writers could strategize their way into the UK and international markets. Trewin also moderated a discussion between Blake and Maltese author Leanne Ellul, where both writers spoke about their respective working methods and sources of inspiration. Malta-born, UK-based author and editor Charlie Castelletti drew from his experience as children's books editor at Macmillan UK to deliver a talk on writing for children and young adults. The founding editors of London-based Praspas Press, which is focused on publishing contemporary Maltese writing in English and English translation, delivered a session on editing. And bringing the process full circle was ‘How a Book is Made’ — an informative seminar delivered by Gutenberg Press on the complete life-cycle of book production.

The Festival sought to attract a wider audience through its partnership with distinguished external stakeholders. Teatru Malta teamed up with the NBC to present VII/Fidwa – a concert featuring The New Victorians and inspired by the sold-out stage shows Sette and Il-Fidwa tal-Bdiwa. Podcast host Jon Mallia moderated a wide-ranging discussion on the state of Maltese literature and the role of the Maltese writer in contemporary society – a conversation which included a high-profile and eclectic selection of Maltese authors: Trevor Żahra, Loranne Vella, Lon Kirkop, Nadia Mifsud and Aleks Farrugia.

Ever true to the theme of #beyondbooks, but also in line with consistent efforts by the NBC over the years to advocate for the value of the Maltese book in various media, the Festival featured film-based events drawing from Malta’s literary culture. These included the premiere of a documentary honouring the legacy of historian Prof. Henry Frendo (recipient of the Lifetime Achievement Award at the 2022 edition of the National Book Prize), produced by Blank Canvas Creatives and financed by the NBC.

A panel discussion on the upcoming film adaptation of Clare Azzopardi’s novel Castillo was also held. Members of the cast and crew were joined by Azzopardi to discuss the challenges of transposing the novel into different media, with production house Take Two having also previously adapted the work for the stage in 2022.

The Festival’s international dimension was not only limited to the participation of its special guests. The Gibraltar National Book Council participated in a public conversation with the representatives of its Maltese counterpart. The two entities compared and contrasted their respective literary ecologies and explored future avenues for collaboration.

The Festival was further enriched by the continued participation of entities such as the Italian Cultural Institute, the French Embassy/ Alliance Française and the German-Maltese Circle/Department of German at the University of Malta, who represented and catered for a rich segment of Malta’s expat community.

It would be remiss not to mention the various entities and individuals who have collaborated with the National Book Council to ensure that the Malta Book Festival remains a fixture in the Maltese cultural calendar: the many exhibitors, the aforementioned Inspire Foundation, Arts Council Malta, Teatru Malta, Energy and Water Agency, as well as illustrator Moira Scicluna Zahra and graphic designer Sarah Cachia Falzon for creating this year’s mascots, along with Kyle Gauci Cunningham who brought them to life in a beautiful video animation. Neither would the Festival have been possible without the tireless work of the technical team and the staff at the MFCC and Zaffarese Ltd. And of course, the many and varied attendees that graced the Malta Book Festival this year.

The Malta Book Fund

Now in its eighth edition, the 2023 Malta Book Fund has a total value of €120,000 spread over four main categories: Publishing Grants for New Books, with an allocation of €50,000; Publishing Grants for New Editions of Out-of-Print Works, with an allocation of €10,000; Translation Grants (divided into two categories: Translation of Maltese books, with an allocation of €40,000, and Translation of books into Maltese, with an allocation of €15,000); and Book Translation Pitch Grants, with an allocation of €5,000.

The public call for the 2023 Malta Book Fund opened on 10 April and by the 5 June deadline a total of 70 eligible submissions across all categories were received. After all submitted projects were assessed for eligibility, completeness, costing, feasibility and cultural merit, 26 projects received full or partial funding by an independent board appointed by the National Book Council and composed of Keith Borg, George Cassar, Sephora Francalanza and Karsten Xuereb.

The NBC has been developing the Fund since 2015 to foster cultural growth in the local book market with the objective of countering the effects of its relatively small size, which seriously limits the capital available for quality publications, research and development, translation and marketing. The Malta Book Fund is part of the Council's vision to take the role of a cultural agent within society and become a proactive and progressive contributor to the cultural, educational and intellectual development of our society.

The Fund encourages authors, translators and publishers to pursue projects despite their lack of commercial viability, as well as to boost confidence in such initiatives and to ensure their fruition in order to support local authors, translators and publishers who tend to curtail their more ambitious projects.

Two of the books published in 2023 that were granted the 2023 Malta Book Fund

All grants awarded may support up to 100 percent of the proposed project costing, up to a maximum of €5,000 for all grants, except the Book Translation Pitch Grants, which may be funded for a maximum of €500 per proposal. To ensure that the Malta Book Fund is able to support as many worthy projects as possible and to utilize the funds fully, the National Book Council reserves the right to repurpose grants left unused from one category to the other.

Fund recipients have eighteen months from signing of contract to complete the project. The National Book Council fund administrators will be monitoring the progress of the proposals to ascertain that they are brought to completion.

Foreign Work & Literary Exports

A very important aspect of the National Book Council's work is to enable Maltese literature to travel through translation. By facilitating the publication of Maltese literature abroad, the NBC is fulfilling its mission statement of promoting and exporting Maltese literature, putting the local publishing industry on the international map. This is aimed at attracting the interest of foreign publishing professionals, thus allowing the benefits of an increased visibility to circle back to Malta in terms of direct financial gain for publishers, authors and translators. Through the promotion of the Malta Book Fund in international publishing fora and with an eye to expanding the Fund, the National Book Council continuously strives to liaise with, and support, local publishing stakeholders in their quest to help local authors and publishers to network with foreign publishers, as a strategic reference point on this vital aspect for the book industry.

The work of the NBC goes beyond direct funding and brokering of agreements with foreign publishers and translators. Throughout the year, the Council also provides guidance to authors, stakeholders and entities on how to go about publishing Maltese literature abroad. These efforts notwithstanding, the NBC recognizes the great amount of work that still needs to be done towards the setting up of a dedicated literary agency and an infrastructure that supports them.

The London Book Fair

The London International Book Fair is held annually at Olympia, Kensington, and brings together under one roof an impressive number of small and large publishers, agents, industry professionals and negotiators of publishing rights, as well as the general public. The NBC considers this a very important yearly appointment for the promotion of Maltese literature abroad. Between 18 and 20 April 2023, a number of books – including winners of the National Book Prize – were exhibited at the NBC stand both in their original language and their translated editions, some of which are the result of publishing deals made possible through the support of the Malta Book Fund.

The National Book Council proudly launched the London Book Fair 2023 Initiative for Publishers and Authors from Malta, through which selected participants received a travel and accommodation subsidy to attend the 2023 London Book Fair. As a recognition of the challenge faced by Maltese publishers and authors in navigating the international publishing market, the ultimate goal of this initiative was to help increase the number of foreign rights deals and, in turn, generate a new source of revenue for the local publishing industry. Veteran literary agent Simon Trewin, who has worked with a host of international bestselling authors across books, film, theatre and digital media, and has been collaborating with the NBC since 2022, accompanied authors and publishers who were selected as part of the initiative. This sought to provide a platform for these publishing industry players to network and participate in the global book market, both in the short and the long term.

For the 2023 edition, the National Book Council had a tight agenda of back-to-back meetings with international partners, editors, publishers, foreign institutes and literary agents to promote Maltese literature. As a result of these meetings, the NBC proudly announced a new collaboration with the Commonwealth Foundation through which Maltese writers have the opportunity to participate in the Commonwealth Short Story Prize competition with short stories written in both Maltese and English. Owing to this partnership, entries were submitted in Maltese for the first time. The Commonwealth Short Story Prize is awarded to the best piece of unpublished short fiction (2,000–5,000 words). The five regional winners receive £2,500 and the overall winner receives £5,000. Another £1,000 and £2,000 are awarded to the translator of a regional winning story and to the translator of the overall winning story respectively, if these were submitted in translation for the second adjudication phase. The five regional winning stories are published online by the literary magazine Granta and in a special print collection from Paper + Ink. The shortlisted stories are published in the Foundation's online literary magazine adda. To inaugurate this collaboration, the 2023 Malta Book Festival welcomed Deputy Director-General Shem Ochola, who said a few words about the Commonwealth Short Story Prize and Maltese entrants. Cypriot writer

Constantia Soteriou, winner of the 2019 edition of the Prize, was interviewed by Elena Cardona during an event organized for the occasion.

A collaboration stemming from the NBC's visit to the London Book Fair in 2022 was the publication of a focus section dedicated to Maltese poetry written in or translated into English by renowned literary magazine and publisher Modern Poetry in Translation (MPT). The organization is based in the UK, and was founded by Ted Hughes and Daniel Weissbort in 1965. An open call for Maltese poetry in English translation and in English to be published in MPT was issued in the first week of February via the MPT and the NBC channels, and proved to be an excellent opportunity for Maltese poetry to be showcased beyond local shores. Alongside poetry, the magazine also featured one prose piece in the form of an essay by Adrian Grima, which provided further context on Maltese poetry for the English-speaking market.

Working towards establishing a literary and foreign rights agency in Malta

In 2023, the National Book Council continued a discussion initiated in 2022 about the role of a literary agency in Malta with literary agent Simon Trewin through a talk given to publishing professionals during the 2023 Malta Book Festival in October. Trewin delivered a masterclass for authors regarding the publishing industry in the UK as well as the international market, and looked at the role of the agent in maximizing an author's potential creatively and from a business perspective. The NBC is committed to continuing this discussion at the London Book Fair in 2024 as well as in various fora, including its annual consultation meeting with authors and publishers, which will focus also on contracting and rights when publishing Maltese literature in translation.

New publications supported by the NBC

As a result of an agreement with London-based publisher Praspar Press, in late 2023 the third edition of Scintillas: New Maltese Writing debuted at the 2023 Malta Book Festival. Edited by Jen Calleja and Kat Storace, this anthology features a diverse collection of new prose, poetry and literary non-fiction in English and in English translation. Alongside the previous two editions, the anthology offers a varied glimpse into Maltese literature, featuring both emerging and established Maltese writers. Coupled with anthologies previously commissioned and published by the NBC, these independent publications contribute to the promotion of Maltese literature abroad, ensuring a presence in UK bookshops as prestigious as the London Review of Books Bookshop. Since its establishment in 2020, Praspar Press has significantly enriched the perception of Maltese literature abroad. Their unwavering passion for Maltese literature is evident not only in their commitment to promoting it in the challenging UK market for translated works, but also in their continuous support to the local literary community. As part of their sponsorship for the anthology, Praspar Press extends various services, including their editing and publishing workshop held during the Malta Book Festival. Additionally, they serve as valuable networking agents, facilitating connections and meetings with potential collaborators through their extensive network of professional relationships.

These collaborations reflect the National Book Council's dedication to fostering the growth of Maltese literature while expanding its reach through strategic partnerships in the global literary landscape.

Malta-China cultural exchange through publishing

Thanks to a literary exchange between Malta and China, facilitated by the National Book Council, Lou Drogenik's award-winning novel The Confectioner's Daughter was published in Chinese by Archipel Press in Shanghai in 2023.

In reciprocation, Yin Jian Ling’s young adult novel Wild Grass Slope was published in Maltese by Faraxa Publishing, translated directly from Chinese by Stephen Cachia as Gholjet il-Qasab. The launch event for Gholjet il-Qasab took place at the China Cultural Centre in Valletta in June. The event featured readings from the book by Patrick Sammut, and a discussion between Anthony Aquilina and Stephen Cachia on various aspects of translation and the cultural differences influencing the translator’s journey. Yin Jian Ling, present through a remote connection, expressed her gratitude for this collaboration, which marked the introduction of the first young adult literature from China into the Maltese language. During the event, the China Cultural Centre Director Ms Yuan Yuan thanked all parties involved for promoting a bilateral collaboration between the two countries’ literary circles and enhancing mutual understanding.

In line with its commitment to fostering cultural exchange, the National Book Council plans to further explore and establish similar partnerships with other countries, aiming to expand cross-cultural understanding and appreciation through the exchange of literature, and to put Malta on the international publishing map.

Work on Dun Karm’s translation in Chinese

After extensive research on the tonal rhythms of Chinese pentasyllabic and heptasyllabic poetry, which served as a model for the translations of Dun Karm’s poems into Chinese, the translation process carried on in 2023, adhering to this precise style and furthering the associated research. While a significant portion of the translation work and critical commentary is complete, a few poems require some final revision and editing before the definitive version of the project is released. This stage also includes a process of back translation to ensure contextual accuracy not just in style and structure, but also in interpretation and poetry. The project has now reached an advanced stage and is expected to be completed in the coming months.

Audiovisual Productions

Over the past year, the National Book Council has continued to promote Maltese literature with wider audiences by investing in a number of audiovisual productions and collaborating with media partners on various promotional campaigns, thus supporting authors, illustrators and publishers.

In 2023 these included weekly audiovisual podcasts, book trailers, documentary productions and the filming of events at the Malta Book Festival, which were made available on the NBC website, YouTube channel and social media platforms. Earlier productions such as the Lovin Book Reviews video series, produced with Lovin Malta over the past few years, were shared as booktoks with new and younger audiences on the NBC's channel on the social media platform TikTok.

The NBC has also continued to monitor projects funded through its Feature Film Adaptation Fund. The second project to receive the €200,000 grant was an adaptation of Clare Azzopardi's Castillo (Merlin Publishers, 2018) by Take Two, expected to be released in local cinemas in 2024. The trailer for Castillo was teased during a panel discussion on the film adaptation at the 2023 Malta Book Festival.

Productions on National Book Prize winners

To promote the 2022 National Book Prize winners, the National Book Council produced eighteen book video trailers in collaboration with Concept Stadium, showcasing the winning titles and celebrating their authors. The trailers were published on the NBC's social media platforms. All episodes of the series Read. Learn. Repeat. were also broadcast during popular shows on TVM, which also featured extended interviews with the award-winning authors.

At an event held during the 2023 Malta Book Festival, the NBC also premiered a short documentary film produced by Blank Canvas celebrating the work of Prof. Henry Frendo, recipient of the 2022 National Book Prize Lifetime Achievement Award. The film focused on Prof. Frendo's contributions to Maltese historical documentation and his analysis of Malta's geopolitical status, particularly as an English colony. The screening was followed by a panel discussion moderated by Mario Xuereb, and with the participation of Prof. Frendo, Prof. Vicki Ann Cremona and the director of the documentary Anthony Mizzi.

Markapagna

From January through April 2023, the NBC aired the second series of its book podcast Markapagna, ten audiovisual podcasts produced in collaboration with MaltaToday. The second series was hosted by Rachel Baldacchino and featured guest authors and researchers active in Maltese publishing and beyond. The first season of Markapagna had launched in September 2022 with host Luke Galea for a series of conversations about selected literary works chosen by the guests and the significance they held for them. All episodes from both series have been published on the NBC's YouTube channel, Facebook page and website, as well as MaltaToday online. The episodes are available in audio-only formats on Spotify and Apple Podcasts.

Literary Contests

The Doreen Micallef National Poetry Contest

Organized annually by the National Book Council, the Doreen Micallef National Poetry Contest awards the best poem in Maltese submitted anonymously to a judging panel through a call for submissions. The call for the fifth edition was opened in June 2023, and specified that prospective participants could submit exclusively one original and unpublished poem in Maltese not exceeding 36 lines, and signed with a pseudonym to ensure a fair and unbiased evaluation.

In 2023, 67 poems were submitted by budding poets and seasoned writers alike, attesting to the ever-increasing prestigiousness of this literary contest. The winners were announced on Friday 20 October at an awards ceremony as part of the 2023 Malta Book Festival. In his speech, NBC Executive Chairperson Mark Camilleri observed that the remarkably-close scores of the top twelve participants proved the resurgence of Maltese poetry and the highly competitive nature of this contest.

Glen Calleja placed third with his poem 'RSVP' while Claudia Gauci ranked second with her poem 'Penthos'. The first prize was awarded to Leanne Ellul for her poem 'ix-xnighat ta' xmux u dwalijiet għammiexa'.

This edition's evaluation panel, appointed by the NBC, consisted of Caldon Mercieca, Justine Somerville and Irene Mangion. Their evaluation was based on five criteria: originality, technique, form, diction and impression on the reader. The adjudicators described Ellul's winning poem as a formally innovative work which manages to find beauty in ruin and destruction, and whose structure evokes fragmentation and disharmony, matching the fatalistic and cynical thrust of the work.

The call for submissions for the next edition of the Doreen Micallef National Poetry Contest will be issued in June 2024.

The Novels for Youth Literary Contest

Following a revamp that was announced at the 2022 edition of the Malta Book Festival, Aġenzija Żgħażaġh and the National Book Council relaunched the Novel for Youth Literary Contest after a two-year hiatus at a press conference held in January 2023.

This annual contest is organized with the purpose of adding a valuable contribution to Young Adult literature in Maltese by awarding an innovative novel that targets readers aged between 13 and 18, and explores themes that resonate with young readers, delving into issues they may experience without adopting a moralizing or didactic tone. The partnership between Aġenzija Żgħażaġh and the NBC seeks to support the publication of Maltese novels in this genre, enhancing their visibility in the local market. Additionally, it aims to foster a reading culture among adolescents.

To enter the Novels for Youth Literary Contest, participants must be 20 years old and over, and submit an original Maltese novel tailored for adolescents under a pseudonym. The eligible manuscripts should range between 20,000 and 25,000 words, accompanied by a synopsis not exceeding 500 words. The winner receives a prize of €1,000, along with a certificate and trophy. The winning manuscript is published by a publishing house chosen by the author. The publisher is given €3,000 for the publication of the winning novel.

The competition is anonymously evaluated by three independent NBC-appointed adjudicators who assess entries using four key criteria: plot and character development, originality, language, and quality. In the initial phase, evaluators individually review manuscripts. Subsequently, a moderated discussion, led by the appointed NBC project manager, takes place. A comprehensive report is then compiled.

The call for submissions for the 2023 Novels for Youth Literary Contest was issued in January of the same year, and five applicants answered the call. The winner of the 2023 edition will be announced at an awards-giving ceremony in January 2024, which will be followed by the publication of the call for submissions for the 2024 edition soon after.

The Campus Book Festival

The tenth edition of the Campus Book Festival took place from Wednesday 22 to Friday 24 March at the University of Malta Quadrangle. An annual event, the Festival is a collaborative venture between the National Book Council, various university departments, student organizations, NGOs and cultural governmental entities. The objective of the Campus Book Festival is to offer a scaled-down version of the Malta Book Festival specifically tailored for university students and academics, providing a platform for the exchange of ideas among students, academics, writers and publishers.

The programme for this edition included thematic discussions, book club sessions, interviews with local and international writers and researchers, conversations on literature and recurring themes in the publishing field, book launches, and the celebration of prominent Maltese writers, and in particular 2022 National Book Prize winners.

The intersection of literature and music was explored through the exhibition Ħsejjes Letterarji, presenting recently published books accompanied by QR codes that linked to the music featured in those specific books. This interactive display aimed to assist readers in discovering their next read, while exploring Maltese novels, poetry collections and non-fiction, and showcasing how music can enhance the reading experience by providing a new dimension to the text.

Key events in this year's programme included an illustration workshop with Arts Council Malta; a reading session organized by LGBTI+ Gozo; a slam poetry event by Għaqda tal-Malti – Università; a creative writing workshop on YA literature; a discussion about the chapbook by Ede Books; and a Palk Ħieles/Open Mic session organized by Inizjamed. Events organized by the NBC included interviews with Tyrone Grima and Alfred Buttigieg.

The 2023 edition saw the return of familiar exhibitors and organizations, solidifying longstanding collaborations with companies such as Ede Books/Kixott, Faraxa Publishing, Horizons, Kite Group, Klabb Kotba Maltin/ Midsea Books, Għaqda tal-Malti – Università and SKS Publishers. Additionally, new exhibitors, including Mallia & D'Amato Bookshelf Curators, Arts Council Malta, LGBTI+ Gozo and Think magazine, joined the event. Together, publishers and booksellers offered a diverse selection of carefully-curated local and international books, catering to the preferences of the Festival's targeted readership.

Other Initiatives

The National Book Council encompasses a range of initiatives, including promotional campaigns, collaborations with stakeholders and institutional activities such as consultation meetings and industry surveys, as outlined in the Council's legal notice.

Legal notice and legislative work

The National Book Council conducted two separate consultation meetings at the Victoria Hotel in Sliema on 26 January 2023 – first with publishers and subsequently with authors. Both meetings garnered significant attendance. Various key aspects of the NBC's work were discussed. These included a post-mortem analysis of the 2022 Malta Book Festival; proposed changes in the dates for the 2023 editions of the Malta Book Festival and the National Book Prize; the necessity of conducting an updated survey with the National Statistics Office (NSO) on the current state of the publishing industry; and the NBC's calendar of events for 2023. Publishers collectively agreed that the Malta Book Festival 2023 should ideally be held at the end of October, a suggestion adopted by the NBC, resulting in the Festival taking place on 18–22 October.

The meeting with authors also covered discussions about the ISBN process, the Malta Book Fund applications, updates on legislative work and the professionalization of the author's role in today's publishing market. The authors supported the current format of the National Book Prize ceremony, where both the Terramaxka and Book Prize winners are awarded on the same night.

The Council continued its legislative efforts to reduce the income tax rate on authors' royalties. As of 1 January 2023, authors now pay a reduced rate of 7.5%, marking a significant step in the ongoing initiative started three years ago by the NBC. The initial goal was to eventually eliminate this tax entirely, and the recent reduction follows the earlier decrease from 18% to 15%. The NBC remains unwavering in its commitment to fully eliminating this tax.

Furthermore, the Council advocates for a fiscal incentive benefitting publishers. This would entail publishers having the option to request

The Malta Book Centre on Old Mint Street, Valletta

The NBC boasts a number of initiatives as well as institutional work according to its legal notice a full reimbursement of the tax paid on royalties distributed to authors, reinforcing the Council's dedicated commitment to creating a supportive environment for the literary community.

The Malta Book Centre

In 2023, the National Book Council marked a milestone in the regeneration of the palazzo at 8, Old Mint Street into a national book centre, with the completion of the restoration phase of the project. Following interventions on timber apertures and the street and internal courtyard façades, the restoration phase has been completed to fully expose 19th century internal wall paintings and ceilings which, over the years and throughout the building's many uses, had been covered under many layers of paint. The next phase of the project, intended to improve accessibility within the building, has also been launched this year with the publication of a tender for structural works. The installation of building services, finishes and furnishings will follow.

The Malta Book Centre is expected to benefit the local book culture and industry providing a multi-functional space that serves as a new cultural centre in Valletta. Across four mixed-use storeys, including a basement level and a rooftop area (with the former being conceived as a space dedicated to book launches and events) the Centre will host a bookshop, reading rooms, a café area and the offices of the National Book Council.

Public Lending Rights

The Public Lending Rights (PLR) scheme is administered by the National Book Council. The scheme allows copyright holders – authors, illustrators, translators, editors and photographers – to benefit from payments when their books are borrowed from any public library in Malta and Gozo and the University of Malta Library (introduced in 2014 and 2021 respectively). In 2023, payments to registered authors were issued quarterly, while payments for the recently introduced UM Library scheme were likewise issued quarterly as stipulated in the Council's agreement with Malta Libraries and the UM Library.

Education Exception payments

Following the signing in 2020 of the Education Exception Contract between the Ministry for Education, Sport and Youth, Research and Innovation, the Malta Reprographic Rights Organisation (MRRO) and the National Book Council, in 2023 fifteen registered publishing entities benefited from this fund for the third consecutive year. According to the Education Exception Contract, the NBC is the entity responsible for the handing over of funds to the MRRO, who in turn distributes them to licensed publishers and authors registered in the scheme.

The aim of this Contract is to provide rights holders with rights payments over the use of their published work in the public education system, and to ensure compliance with the EU Digital Single Market Directive. It sets the terms on which the MRRO grants a licence to educational establishments in Malta to reproduce extracts from published material in which copyright subsists. The NBC invites more publishing entities to register for this fund by sending an email to mro.malta@gmail.com.

The Retention Policy

In a significant milestone, the National Book Council implemented an official Retention Policy with the National Archives of Malta, ensuring that key documents pertaining to the NBC are now made available to the public. Formally endorsed during a visit to the Archives on 13 November 2023, the policy aims at preserving and safeguarding crucial records related to the history of the NBC. The implementation of this retention policy underscores the commitment of both organizations to ensure the proper appraisal and preservation of records created and managed by the National Book Council.

To uphold the integrity and relevance of this retention policy, this will undergo periodic reviews, at a minimum of once every five years from the date of issue. These reviews will assess the continued suitability of all processes and documentation categories, particularly in light of any procedural or legal changes. This policy supersedes any previous retention policies that may have been in effect for the same records.

Book donations

The National Book Council kept its annual appointment with Malta Libraries, the public entity which administers all public libraries in Malta and Gozo, with book donations aimed at ensuring libraries are all equipped with the latest publications by local publishers. In its role as a cultural and educational agent, the NBC aims to promote writing and reading in Maltese society, and considers such donations as one of the means to achieve its main aims.

On the occasion of World Book Day in April and immediately before Christmas in December, the NBC donated a considerable amount of books, ranging from novels, short stories, poetry, drama, literary nonfiction and translations, to children's books, research and academic books, which Malta Libraries in turn distributed in local libraries across Malta and Gozo.

The 2024 EUPL novel for Malta

In 2023, the National Book Council was appointed as Malta's official nominating body for the European Union Prize for Literature (EUPL). Tasked with selecting a novel that aligns with EUPL criteria, the Council aims to elevate emerging Maltese authors on the international stage within the diverse richness of European contemporary fiction, and to foster interest in non-national literary works. The eagerly anticipated shortlist, unveiling the national nominees, is set to be disclosed in early March 2024. Since 2022, a transformative shift has occurred, with a seven-member European jury now designating not only an overall winner but also recognizing five special mentions from the pool of fourteen translated books. The jury focuses on literary achievements and the potential of these works to transcend borders.

As part of this process, in April the National Book Council will present and defend its selection before the jury at the Brussels Book Fair. Success in this deliberation could position Malta's nomination among the six distinguished books, offering it a chance to be crowned the overall winner. Despite the evolving awarding process, all national nominees receive dedicated European promotion, ensuring their exposure to a broader and international audience.

Publishing Entities Survey 2022

For the third consecutive year, the Publishing Entities Survey, conducted by the National Statistics Office in collaboration with the NBC, continues to play a pivotal role in providing official statistics on the book industry. This data acts as a key resource for the NBC to formulate policies, institute integral changes and provide enduring support to all stakeholders within the industry. In 2024, the survey's findings will serve as a cornerstone for the focus groups and workshops that the NBC will conduct with its stakeholders for the 2025–2030 NBC Strategy.

After consulting major publishers and the NBC board, a new, more streamlined questionnaire tailored for local publishers was introduced, featuring questions that reflect the specific situation of Malta's Publishing Industry. The survey showed a marked decline in digital publications, constituting only 0.5% of the total published titles. Trade publishing sales generated 65% of the total revenue, although a notable surge in print runs for educational titles was observed. Notably, from 2021 to 2022, there was a considerable increase in the cost of book production, accounting for up to 80% of total costs for the respondents. A majority experienced an increase in costs of 20% or less. Close to 75% attributed this increase to the rise in paper cost (up to 100% for 16.4% of the respondents).

Concerning new titles, there was a slight increase in the number of sublicensed titles compared to the preceding year. However, the majority of titles were original publications, suggesting a resistance in the sale and purchase of publishing foreign rights. The survey also revealed that 47% and 40% of publishing entities respectively allocated 0% and less than 20% of their budget to promotion and marketing. On a different note, 60% of respondents contracted only up to three authors in 2022.

When cross-referencing the number of books published and ISBNs issued, the sustained growth of Malta's self-publishing community could also be highlighted. Notably, the data on ISBNs in the NSO survey is not directly comparable to other national and officially registered records, including the NBC ISBN database. Discrepancies may arise due to the NBC's inclusion of unique ISBNs for each format of a book title, different languages, and distinct editions, if applicable.

Marketing and social media

Engaging with the public and conducting awareness initiatives on the National Book Council's activities, recent publications, Maltese literature classics and book industry trends are key functions facilitated by social media for the NBC. Various outreach endeavours encompassed competitions, financial support for audiovisual campaigns and sponsorship of television interviews. These efforts aimed to highlight National Book Prize winners and featured an annual social media campaign focusing on both shortlisted and winning titles of the National Book Prize and Terramaxka Prize. Additionally, the NBC allocated resources to literary review initiatives and launched marketing campaigns to foster the promotion of reading and Maltese literature.

Also primarily focused on highlighting National Book Prize winners for 2023, the Campus Book Festival and the Malta Book Festival, the campaigns were spread out across both print newspapers and online portals, with the NBC continuing its fruitful collaboration with established entities of the local media landscape, both in print and online. National Book Prize winners were also promoted through the second Read. Learn. Repeat. series of book video trailers which ran on the NBC's social media platforms.

The Malta Book Festival campaign was devised with the collaboration of illustrator Moira

Scicluna Zahra and graphic designer Sarah Cachia Falzon. The visual signature of the campaign was characterised by a group of mascot characters, each designed to highlight the theme #beyondbooks, which was the motif for the 2023 Malta Book Festival. The characters were used to signpost each section of the Malta Book Festival space at the MFCC, Ta' Qali – each room and/or hall was dedicated to one of the mascots – and were also brought to life in a promotional animation video by Kyle Xuereb Cunningham, who was selected following an open call. The mascots were also pivotal in the rollout of the press campaign related to the MBF, with each of them receiving a spotlight and thus ensuring novelty and a consistently updated PR narrative. Each mascot showed an individual aspect of the multi-sensorial experience of books: from the traditional reading act itself, to the process of writing, as well as theatrical and film adaptations of literary works. The NBC continued its collaboration with popular podcast host Jon Mallia following his presence at the Malta Book Festival in the previous year, with pre-festival promotion on the podcast itself. Mallia also moderated an important roundtable discussion on the state of Maltese literature.

The recruitment of a full-time marketing manager in August 2023 marked a significant milestone that enabled the NBC to plan innovative approaches to enhance its communications and outreach, both in the interests of the Council itself and that of its stakeholders. Building on established media relationships while adapting to changing realities, the NBC will seek to strike a balance between wide-ranging campaigns and more targeted efforts to reach various book-reading niches, aiming to craft relevant and memorable products that prioritise active engagement.

The weekly book review on Illum

Known as the 'pagna letterarja', the NBC sponsors a weekly literary column published in the Sunday Maltese-language newspaper Illum, which is then shared on its online portal. The literary column offers a space where contributors engaged by the NBC can review the latest and most exciting Maltese publications, interview local authors and engage in discussions on current literary debates.

A total of 51 contributions were published in Illum, the majority of which featured reviews on books ranging from prize-winning novels and short story collections to children's books and poetry. Other contributions featured exclusive interviews with writers and literary criticism with a thematic focus.

In February 2023, long-serving contributor Mark Vella passed the reins to a small team of reviewers consisting of Elena Cardona, Noel Tanti and Patrick J. Sammut. Following Tanti's resignation, Daniel Cossai joined the pagña letterarja team in November 2023.

Supporting book illustrators and graphic designers

For the third consecutive year, the National Book Council sponsored the Malta Community of Illustrators' Illustration Annual. Its third issue was published in 2023 and launched at the Malta Book Festival. The MCOI, supported by MCAST Research, works towards promoting professional illustrators, to encourage and educate on the use of illustration as an effective tool for communication. The Illustration Annual 2023 contains 66 illustrations by 43 Maltese or Malta-based illustrators, chosen anonymously by a panel of distinguished seasoned illustrators based both in Malta and abroad, namely Zoë Barker, iella (Daniela Attard) and Thom Cuschieri. It showcases works commissioned for commercial or publishing purposes as well as personal projects, some of which were displayed at the From Illustration to Book exhibition hosted by the NBC in collaboration with Arts Council Malta at the 2023 Malta Book Festival.

L-Isfida Msella

For the third time in a row, the National Book Council supported L-Isfida Msella, a reading challenge launched by San Anton School. This contest asks participating students to read three Maltese books in three months, followed by the completion of tasks related to their reading: creating posters, creative writing projects and book trailers. The winners of L-Isfida Msella were announced during a special event hosted at the 2023 Malta Book Festival.
